

Chapter 19
THE GREAT SCROLLS

Oriana led the way up the mountain, followed by Juan and Ohumah. Walking up and down the dunes was an exhilarating experience for Juan, as he could feel the special energy that they embodied. The journey through the dense forest and the landscape of scattered trees was equally fascinating because Juan understood the essence of the message that they conveyed. As they reached the illuminated peak of the Great Sakhava, Juan could see nothing in front of him except pure light—a warm, beautiful, loving light that somehow did not dazzle his eyes. After walking for a few moments through this light, he saw what appeared to be an entrance to a cave, and within the entrance stood the silhouette of a tall, radiant being.

The being introduced himself as Asakhavana, and greeted each of the three of them with a warm embrace. Juan knew Asakhavana to be the keeper of the Great Scrolls, which contained knowledge pertaining to all civilisations and life forms that had inhabited the planet since its emergence from the sun. The scrolls also contained prophecies of important events to come. The time had arrived for Juan to learn about the prophecies that were important for his civilisation, which the Alacazerans referred to as the 'Twelfth Civilisation.' Asakhavana led them further into the cave along a broad path that had numerous openings branching out in different directions. Asakhavana explained that each branching passageway led to specific libraries of Great Scrolls that contained information on eras of time, the planets, cosmic bodies and the various universes. At the moment he was leading Ohumah, Oriana and Juan to the scrolls of the Twelfth Civilisation.

Asakhavana turned left into a dark, narrow passageway that opened up into an enormous, well-lit cave whose ceiling stretched at least twenty metres (sixty feet) above them. The walls of the cave contained shelves with row after row of fifteen-centimetre (six-inch) square openings that looked like pigeonholes. Each hole contained a neatly rolled up scroll.

The cave suddenly filled up with the scent of sandalwood. All four of them, knowing they were once again in the presence of Oriya, the Great Soul, who had come to shower blessings upon them, paused. They stood still with their eyes closed, savouring every instant of the exquisite spiritual experience. A few moments later, as the sandalwood scent dissipated, they opened their eyes once again.

Beaming with radiance, Asakhavana looked into Juan's eyes. "Juan Lopez, this is the last and the most important part of your journey through the world of the Alacanzera. You will be blessed with the revelation of ten Ahavas (chapters) in our Prophecy of the Twelfth Civilisation, which relates to your present civilisation. While our prophecies cover every civilisation, we shall relate to you the most important ones that pertain to the end of the Twelfth Civilisation, which in your calendar represents the present time. By sharing the counsel in our scrolls with your fellow beings, you will initiate the growth of a powerful Consciousness of unity and harmony that may carry your civilisation to great new heights of accomplishment.

"Before I show you the scrolls of the Twelfth Civilisation," Asakhavana continued, "you need to understand the calendar of the Alacanzera in order that you may be able to interpret our counsel correctly."

In a soft voice, Juan replied, "O great Asakhavana, I was not aware that the calendar of my world was different from yours. In all humility, I pray to be graced with the knowledge of the Alacanzera calendar."

Ohumah winked at Juan. "Good gracious me, Juan Lopez! Your vocabulary is amazing. Before you arrived in our world, your words were shallow and your colourful language was littered with four-lettered poetry. And now you speak with such purity and depth, like a true being of Light. Your vocabulary has certainly picked up a few more letters."

Asakhavana continued, "Juan Lopez, we Alacazerans measure time in accordance with a cosmic cycle that is based on the position of the galaxy called Asahacara. This galaxy, which is comprised of one hundred and one cosmic bodies, aligns itself perfectly with the earth and the sun at specific points in its cycle. This alignment repeats itself from cycle to cycle, whose time intervals are fluid and not fixed. We measure our eras of time according to these cycles of alignment. Hence unlike your calendar, which is underpinned by only three cosmic bodies, namely the earth, moon and sun, our eras are not based on fixed time intervals because we cannot predict precisely when each perfect cosmic alignment between the earth, the sun and all the hundred and one cosmic bodies of the Asahacara will occur.

"The dolphins follow the same cosmic calendar because at the commencement of each cycle, the cosmic energy waves in the ocean reach a peak, which is experienced and respected by every single dolphin. We Alacazerans follow this cosmic cycle as our measure of time because it is not limited to our physical lifetime on this planet. This cosmic cycle impacts and governs the calendars of all the life forms throughout the universe."

Ohumah interjected, "Juan Lopez, our calendar represents a fascinating field of study for open-minded scientific researchers in your world. Understanding this form of variable time measurement will unlock many unsolved mysteries for your people."

Oriana added, "Juan Lopez, each time a new cosmic cycle commences, the energy levels in the planet reach a peak, which triggers a transformation in the genetic code of all living creatures. To a certain extent, the aging cycle of human beings is accelerated at different phases of life by this cosmic energy peak. Have you noticed how some people look relatively young at one point in time and then when you see them say, two or three years later, they have aged significantly? This is because their genetic code had undergone an evolutionary change when the sun, earth and the hundred and one cosmic bodies of the Asahacara came into complete alignment. Also, you will find that these cosmic energy peaks cause the formation of new organisms on the planet, alter weather patterns and initiate whatever changes are necessary for the planet to successfully sustain itself as a viable cosmic body.”

Asakhavana took up the teaching again. “The energy fields that manifest during each cosmic cycle are also impacted by the harmonic energy of the earth as it travels through the universe. This harmonic energy is critical to the survival of the earth as a host to life forms that depend upon its equilibrium. This harmonic energy can be adversely affected by the consequences of polarisation of power in human civilisations, which in turn can disrupt the integrity of its equilibrium. The net effect is a response from the universe that is directed towards eliminating the forces that disrupt this harmony. This is why so many human civilisations have disintegrated in your history after reaching their peak, because their way of life threatened the survival of the planet and its harmonics.

“Juan Lopez, according to our scrolls, a major interruption in the cosmic cycle is expected to coincide with the year 2012 in your calendar. This interruption will come from the breakdown of the harmonic energy of Planet Earth, caused by the substantial material and energetic pollution created by your civilisation. You may not be aware of it, Juan Lopez, but ‘thought pollution,’ which arises from the excessive presence of negative thoughts, can have a devastating effect on the harmonics of the planet. Your people are unaware that they are all like gardeners, spreading seeds of living thoughts every moment of their lives. These thoughts germinate, flow and fulfil themselves based upon the energy that lies at their core. Positive thoughts foster positive energetic fields that lead towards nurturing outcomes. Negative thoughts spiral like dark cyclones, causing pain and devastation along their way. Remember that a spiral or a vortex goes to infinity at its smallest and largest sectors. It is the infinite dimension of these negative vortices that cause the serious damage to the harmonic energy of the earth. In your world today, negative energies outweigh the positive energies and the planet is struggling to find its life-sustaining equilibrium. That is why, Juan Lopez, the quality of human consciousness is of critical importance at this time."

Oriana added, "Our scrolls say that we will arise again in the form of a powerful positive Consciousness before this date, in order to help restore the harmonic energy of the earth. This will help prevent the accelerated decline of your civilisation. Juan Lopez, if you look carefully, you will see that our presence has surfaced in your world, as evidenced by the shift in human consciousness towards protecting the environment and seeking peace and equilibrium in all aspects of life. Twenty-five years ago, in the days of the Cold War, this consciousness was practically non-existent. The notions of environmental care and positive motivational energy were foreign concepts to most of humanity. However, today things are changing rapidly. The large demonstrations by millions of people against the war in Iraq were an example of the emergence of our Consciousness of peace, unity and equilibrium. Sadly though, the minority of people who were in positions of power went ahead with the war and defied this positive mass Consciousness. But their time is limited because positive change must occur very soon if this civilisation is to survive."

"Juan Lopez, even the planet speaks the language of our Consciousness of preservation and protection of the environment," Ohumah interjected. "Several years ago, when the leaders of the United States rejected the Kyoto Protocol in favour of business interests over environmental preservation, there were shark attacks upon people across the entire coastline of the United States, all occurring within a short period of time. This was nature's way of protesting against the fundamentally flawed human decisions that threatened the survival of the planet. Think about it for a moment. What are the statistical odds of a natural phenomenon like this occurring in such a co-ordinated and well-timed manner? You see, Juan Lopez, our Consciousness has begun to live in the hearts, minds and souls of humanity in your civilisation. However, a great deal more needs to happen over the next five years to cause the necessary positive shift in human consciousness before the dawn of the year 2012."

Oriana added, "Juan Lopez, when we talk about 2012, we are referring to a turning point in your civilisation rather than an absolute beginning or an end point. If the earth's harmony is restored, you will witness a monumental positive change in the future direction of your civilisation. If you fail to restore the earth's harmony before the year 2012, you will go down a path of decimation that will result in the ultimate demise of your civilisation within less than half a century thereafter. The responsibility for your survival lies entirely in the hands of every man, woman and child in your civilisation."

Asakhavana stepped towards a shelf holding ten neatly rolled scrolls tucked into their respective pigeonholes. He looked at Juan, smiled, and pulled out the first scroll. It was approximately fifty centimetres (two feet) wide, supported at top and bottom by a circular piece of wood from the Abuoya tree. With great care and respect, Asakhavana unrolled the scroll to its full length, about seventy-five centimetres (three feet), to reveal handsome maroon lettering on a strong but flexible beige-coloured fabric. The texture of the fabric appeared to be somewhere between that of paper and cloth. Despite its age, the scroll showed no signs of degradation. It looked as if it had been written upon only yesterday!

Asakhavana stood next to Juan with the scroll stretched open. "Here is the first Ahava, or chapter, in the Prophecy of the Twelfth Civilisation. It is written in Alacazeran so I shall translate it into your modern-day language and terminology as I read. Remember, we are revealing to you only the ten Ahavas that are pertinent to preventing the end of the Twelfth Civilisation. Everything else about your civilisation that is in our library of scrolls is also documented in your own history books, but with much less accuracy, because your world has a

'tailored' history caused by a biased point of view often reflected in the works of your historians. However, Juan Lopez, we consider such historical information of less importance at this time compared to the action that you need to take upon returning to your world."

Chapter 20

PROPHECIES

CONCERNING THE TWELFTH CIVILISATION

The First Ahava

We shall rise again . . .

Asakhavana translated:

We (the Alacanzera) have manifested physically on this earth after the Great War (Mahabharata era) to bring healing and restore the equilibrium after a period of immeasurable conflict and absence of harmony. We live as a soothing ointment for Planet Earth, nurturing life that comes from Light and returns to Light. We endow each manifested soul with powers of equilibrium, so that it may return with greater harmony (than when it arrived). Even after we shed our form, we shall continue to shine through the soul of this planet, the home of twelve civilisations to come.

According to the cycles of Asahacara, a point of transformation shall be reached by the Twelfth Civilisation, which shall include the number twelve in its entirety, as it follows the circle (zero) that lies beyond the absolute sum of its one hundred and one cosmic bodies. (This translates to the number 2012).

The Twelfth Civilisation shall come to an end at this point of transformation in the same way that life ended on the Red Planet, unless a foundation of unity and harmony is built before the moments arrive. The choice of whether the Twelfth Civilisation rises to great new heights of progress, or destroys itself, rests in the hands of each individual human being.

If the Twelfth Civilisation averts this end, it shall rise into the stars, bringing forth the Thirteenth Civilisation, whose unity and power shall lead it well beyond the planet earth, towards new and distant homes in the galaxies.

We shall shed our physical form before the emergence of the First Civilisation, when our land unites with the sea, flanked on one side by the Sacred Mountain (Avila) and the ocean infinite on the other. Here we shall rest in peace, until the time comes when the earth is no longer able to live in harmony within the universe. For then we shall arise again, as a power of Consciousness, to restore (the beings of) the Twelfth Civilisation and allow the passage of the Thirteenth Civilisation into the future.

On the night when Mother Earth shall open, allowing our land to rest in the heart of the ocean infinite, we shall commit ourselves to rest forever, in a form hidden to all civilisations to follow. We shall watch life come and go through the eyes of the Sacred Mountain (Avila), until we are called upon to rise again. In the Sacred Mountain, there shall always remain open the gateway to our world of Oneness, where we shall rest in Light and peace.

The Second Ahava

We shall leave behind seeds . . .

As we heal Mother Earth after the Great War (Mahabharata era) through our existence on her surface, through our energy in her soul, through our Light in her universe, we shall sow seeds of our knowledge, science and ways of living in lands far away, so that civilisations to come may use them as tools to seek and maintain harmony on this planet. Our knowledge and Consciousness shall be carried by our emissaries, who shall travel across the planet to sow seeds in preparation for civilisations to follow.

The seeds of civilisations to follow shall bear a core that seeks to reveal itself beyond the veils of protection that feed and nurture it along its journey. And so every civilisation shall seek to express itself beyond the sanctity of the forces that hold it together with integrity. Hence they shall rise and fall as the future unfolds from era to era.

On this continent shall arise two peoples who shall live in harmony with Mother Earth, with great strength of spirit. They shall emanate our knowledge and thrive amidst their growth as people of peace and wisdom. Their kindness and generosity shall lead to their annihilation at the hands of beings from the north that shall come in the name of religion to exercise their greed. When Mother Earth can no longer bear to feel their pain, it shall absorb them into her heart, to rest in peace forever.

To the east of us shall arise a civilisation, resting in the same place that we do, in our sister continent. They shall grow with strength in the material world, amidst great weakness of spirit. They shall have the benefit of our knowledge and science, which they shall waste in pride and vanity; which are forces that, as yet, remain to be born in this world.

Our descendants in the sister continent shall lose their powers of telepathy and access to the forces of creation, because their consciousness will have fallen from that of the collective to that of the individual. Hence there shall be born negative forces such as ego, greed, vanity and hatred. These beings shall bring about degeneration in the harmony of this planet, which shall lead to their demise by the forces of equilibrium of the universe.

To the north of our land shall also arise two great peoples who shall live in harmony with the earth. They shall be in constant touch with their counterparts in the universe and they shall emulate our values in all aspects of their lives.

The former ones shall evolve into a society that will be afflicted by powers of dominance and control, in the name of spirituality. Ego shall manifest within them as they build structure upon structure, seeking to quench a thirst that finds no satisfaction in the world of the material. There shall be much erosion in their wisdom, even though they may continue to be known in history as wise, spiritual beings.

The latter shall continue to live within our Consciousness of Oneness. They shall not become victims of ego; hence they shall not leave behind monumental tombs, palaces and temples. They shall find joy and satisfaction in the wonders of creation of nature, rather than seeking to create their own temporary wonders. They shall communicate with the trees, birds, animals and Mother Earth through the language of the unspoken. Like their brethren on this continent, they shall also suffer at the hands of peoples from the north that shall seek to take away their land and their identity in the name of religion and greed. When Mother Earth can no longer bear to feel their pain, she shall absorb them into her core to rest in peace forever, while allowing their spirit to flow freely through humanity in the form of a blessed Consciousness.

As we go to the furthest north, where the earth is still, white and pure, there shall arise people who shall live in harmony with nature like their counterparts further south. The harshness of their environment shall protect them from outside forces that are driven by greed and dominance.

To the west shall arise peoples who shall inhabit the glorious islands in the vast ocean. They shall be endowed with our knowledge and spirit, as they live in harmony with the earth and the ocean, creating pure love and equilibrium in all dimensions of their existence. While they may lose contact with their counterparts in the universe, they shall always remain close to their Great Spirit, the Origin of all life. They shall be a people of Oneness. Their best friends shall be the dolphins.

The journey further west from these people takes us back to the east, from where our ancestors came (pre-Mahabharata era). Those who survived the destruction of the Great War shall continue to thrive through their progeny. In these lands of the east, we too shall emerge and live in our present form, as beings of Light, in a small and a hidden enclave in the great mountains. From this enclave we shall continue to bring love, Light and equilibrium to the planet. Yet there we shall remain, people of the Hidden Valley seen by a precious few.

The Third Ahava

Messengers of the Origin

As the cosmic cycles come and go, giving birth to new civilisations on the planet, there shall be a shift in the consciousness of humanity away from unity, Oneness and Light. Humanity shall immerse itself completely in the material plane, giving birth to divisive aspects of human character. These aspects will fuel negative energies within humanity and its environment.

The world shall witness the power of negative forces of anger, greed, jealousy, pride, ego, fear, hatred and more. These forces will adversely shape human mentality and way of life. Yet at the very core of each being resides peace, love, purity, unity and Light. Therefore there shall be an inner conflict between forces of the positive and the negative. This conflict will also manifest externally, giving rise to unhappiness, war, destruction and pain.

There are those who bear the knowledge from the times before the Great War, who shall continue to seek to spread Light amidst a world that grows darker each day. They shall seek to uphold the torches of their ancestors, as the forces of erosion wear away their forbearance.

To bring Light to humanity again, the Origin (the Source of all creation) shall send inspired and enlightened beings into the world, from age to age, time to time and people to people. These beings will teach and remind humanity of the unity and Light that resides at its core. They will promote love, peace and harmony as forces that will counter the existence and spread of negative forces. These great beings shall bring the message of Light to people who have grown accustomed to darkness. They shall create religions and orders of living, so as to keep humanity connected through their minds and souls with their Origin. Each of these great beings will cause major changes in the world, but their works too will fall prey to the inherent forces of pride, ego, power and greed. Their works will be manipulated by the unscrupulous to exercise control over others and breed fear in the name of the Creator (who is pure love and Light). Most great religions of before, and those to come, will be vulnerable to abuse by the negative forces. There shall reach a time when very few religions will reflect the original essence of their messengers or enlightened ones.

Some religions will become sources of war and destruction. Some will become economic powers by exercising greed and control. Some will become political powers, standing in the shadows of the most influential nations on earth. Some may be born and reborn, testing unknown extremities of their own creation. There shall be a few that will continue to uphold their values with varying degrees of spirit and conviction.

All this will lead to a humanity that will have lost a great deal of its essence of love and unity. Human beings will become devoid of telepathy, as this is a sense that lives well beyond the reach of negative forces. They shall be left with only five senses. These five senses may further be reduced to three senses by virtue of the way they live. They will lose their sense of hearing completely as a result of their avenues of entertainment. They will destroy their sight through the use of instruments that (gradually) weaken their vision. Humanity shall thrive in its illusion of power as the dawn of the end approaches.

The Thirteenth Civilisation shall see a fusion of the essence of all religions into a state of Oneness that will be held together by spirituality. Complex and meaningless rituals shall be replaced by the simple understanding of creation and unity. Religious orders shall melt away into a form of pure unity. The power of spirituality in the Thirteenth Civilisation shall endow each being with maximum potential and creativity that may be realised in places that lie well beyond the Planet Earth.

The Fourth Ahava

Degradation of the earth

The way of life in the Twelfth Civilisation shall bring about deep degradation in Mother Earth. The power of negative thought that shall spiral within humanity each day shall cause devastation to the core of the planet, and threaten its ability to sustain itself.

The soil, water and air shall be subjected to degradation through neglect of the environment. The destruction of the life energy of water will bring about diseases and epidemics, which will claim countless lives. Mother Earth shall struggle to keep herself cleansed and pure. Forests shall become deserts and the world of the dolphins, which lies in the ocean infinite, shall suffer considerably at the hands of humanity.

The climate of the planet will fragment, causing severe strain upon nature. At this time the dolphins that are the best friends and protectors of humanity will take measures to stop humanity from destroying their world. This is when the true power of the dolphins shall become evident.

A time will come when the Twelfth Civilisation will have to be diminished in order to protect the planet and allow it to sustain itself within the universe. This is when we shall rise again to help restore the harmony of the planet. We shall take our place in human conscience, to counter its destructive, negative forces with love, compassion and unity. We shall bring about healing, positive thought and restoration of equilibrium, thereby paving the way for the Thirteenth Civilisation."

The Fifth Ahava

The creation of artificial life

The beings of the Twelfth Civilisation shall begin to manipulate life forces through a science that they barely understand. They will try to create artificial life, repeating the mistake of the people of the Red Planet (Mars), whose science had evolved to a level where they believed they had acquired the powers of creation. A time came when, like the earth, their planet too was devoid of harmony. It could no longer exist within the universe. It was destroyed by the very science of creation of its inhabitants, who developed organisms that they could not control. These organisms multiplied instantaneously, consuming the atmosphere of the planet and breaking down all its protective layers. The rays of the sun reached the surface of the planet without restriction, causing complete incineration of what was once a home to advanced civilisations.

The Twelfth Civilisation shall repeat the same mistakes of their counterparts on the Red Planet. They too shall begin to manipulate forces of life through the development of their science. There will be voices of reason that may protest against these developments, but they may not be heard until the point of transformation is reached (2012).

The Sixth Ahava

The wars of injustice

The growth of negative forces in humanity will create injustice at personal, social, communal and global levels. In the absence of spiritual consciousness, human beings shall be reduced to buying and selling their fellow beings. Men shall treat women, who are their divinely blessed partners, as servants and subordinates, subjecting them to humiliation and degradation, until the universe restores them (women) to their rightful place once again. This restoration shall test extremes, which will make women the aggressors of the days to follow. . . .

There will be people who shall claim for themselves the lands and homes of others. There will be those who shall inflict abuse upon those (people) of lesser means. There will be nations of great wealth and resources who shall colonise the weak and steal their resources before the eyes of an oblivious world. Weapons shall exist in the hands of a few that can destroy the world if they choose. They will use these weapons to oppress and subdue, justifying their actions in the name of freedom. Some will hold such weapons because of their self-endowed claim to wisdom. They will prevent others from having such weapons (out of fear) by branding them as villains. Let it be known that all such weapons are a curse on humanity, regardless of who possesses them.

The disadvantaged shall be left without a voice. Their cries for justice will be drowned amidst sounds of war and torture, giving birth to living weapons who will go to extreme levels (of pain) to make their voices heard. They shall tread the path of devastation, inflicting damage upon their aggressors, as well as the innocent. They shall hide like chameleons and strike under veils of deception. They shall have no fear of losing their lives, for the pain of injustice shall have taken away their souls, leaving behind empty shells thirsting for revenge. There shall be the devious, who in the name of religion and justice shall exploit the disadvantaged to commit atrocities beyond imagination.

Civilisations that experience wars of injustice shall unwisely respond to aggression (by the disadvantaged) with further aggression, giving birth to more disadvantaged ones each day. Humanity shall be at peril when the war against injustice spreads from a physical endeavour to becoming a state of mind.

One of the worst demonstrations of the war of injustice shall be witnessed in the Twelfth Civilisation. Poor decisions (lacking in fairness and human sensitivity) shall spark a war that shall consume the entire world. While the beings of the Twelfth Civilisation shall be intelligent and educated, they shall follow egoistic, insensitive and misguided leaders, who shall fail to make any attempt to eradicate injustice and heal scars through dialogue with the disadvantaged. Instead they shall escalate their war against the disadvantaged in an attempt to silence them forever. This shall be the greatest naïveté of the Twelfth Civilisation, for they shall cause an inferno of burning souls who will seek revenge at every step of the way. Let it be known that humility and dialogue are the only permanent methods of extinguishing the flames of injustice.

The war of injustice shall claim innocent lives all over the world and a true solution will only come about when the less capable leaders of the powerful nations are replaced by people who have the humility to listen and to seek permanent peace with the disadvantaged. Then, and only then, shall the bloodshed end. It will take leadership without the cancers of fear and ego to steer the world towards true peace. Our rise shall help this happen, through a wave that raises human consciousness towards unity and peace

The Seventh Ahava

Polarisation of power

There shall be twelve civilisations that prevail on this earth. The thirteenth one, if it should come, shall prevail in the universe, well beyond the planet.

Each of the twelve civilisations shall start with pure values and harmony. But as they grow, the power of decision-making shall be polarised within the strongest groups of people, who shall represent themselves as supreme authorities. Their quest for control and greed for wealth shall cause them to inflict damage upon the planet and all its creation. The equilibrium of the earth respects freedom at all levels of creation and denies the forces of polarisation that inhibit this freedom. Towards the end of the Twelfth Civilisation, humanity will be devoid of freedom and the harmony of the planet shall be deeply eroded. Then shall come an evolutionary message from the universe that calls for the demise of those within whom power has become polarised. No apparent supreme authority or civilisation shall be allowed to exist once it has become a liability to the planet.

The Twelfth Civilisation shall witness the emergence of more than one so claimed supreme authority, which shall rise in the east, at the centre and in the west. Each apparent authority, under the guise of good intentions, shall seek to spread its ideologies and to control the resources of the world. From time to time, these authorities will be led by people of questionable wisdom and integrity. They shall cause polarisation of power in different centres, to the great peril of humanity.

Towards the end of the Twelfth Civilisation there shall emerge an awareness of positive Consciousness, driven by our power of equilibrium and the blessings of the Origin. Humanity shall be endowed with the ability to communicate instantly with one another, without the barriers of distance or geography. This ability shall become a tool in spreading a positive Consciousness, bringing about human empowerment at all levels of society. This process will take power away from the hands of the so claimed supreme authorities and cause it to be widely vested in humanity as a whole. Let it be known that depolarisation of power and restoration of harmony on this planet will be achieved, if the majorities will it so. ”

The Eighth Ahava

The land of promise

To our north shall arise in the Twelfth Civilisation a nation with great promise that shall either become a pillar of strength in humanity or a vehicle of mass destruction. The founding principles of this nation shall be based upon unity and fairness. It shall grow into a superpower that shall be respected and feared. Let it be known that this is the land of promise in the Twelfth Civilisation.

This nation shall forge alliances around the world with other powerful nations, who will fully respect its position and stature until the emergence of certain leaders whose ideologies, ego and greed shall cause it to lose all respect. Let it be known that despite its leaders, this nation shall remain a home to a majority of great compassion and spirit.

The energetic cycle of this nation shall be very strong at the time of its founding. However, over cycles of the cosmic calendar, this energy shall weaken. The true downturn shall begin when it uses its weapons of devastation to burn a sea of human flesh and blood in a land far away. In doing so, the people of this nation will have committed an atrocity of immense proportions against humanity. Nevertheless, they will continue to believe that they were justified in doing so, for generations to come. The mass destruction of human life shall place this nation in debt of life energy, for it will have destroyed what it could not create.

More wars will follow, as this debt remains unpaid, until there comes a shift in mass consciousness of its people. If this should fail to happen, then there shall come large-scale natural disasters that shall claim countless lives, for while this nation may possess the power to wage war, it will remain completely helpless against the powers of nature.

There will be spiritual teachers who shall come to this nation to help create the much-needed shift in mass consciousness, and while its people shall embrace their teachings, its leadership may not. This will place the nation at great risk, for there does await a day in its future, when the place that bears the name of angels shall sink under the ocean after Mother Earth causes a tremor that none could ever guard against. A wave (of water) that screams into the sky shall cause the land to sink to the north and to the south, between the cities of each Saint. Further inland, the ocean shall travel towards a desert, where there lies awaiting a volcano in a place of peace and beauty, which when it erupts shall consume the heartland of this nation. These disasters shall reduce this nation from being a superpower to one that no destiny could ever raise again. As all this happens, there awaits a mighty population in the east to take its place. . . .

The first signs of disintegration shall become evident when the leaders of this nation, amidst clouds of darkness that resemble the smoke of forest fires, abandon Mother Nature by turning their backs on an accord of integrity, to which many peoples of the world shall abide.

Mother Ocean shall be afflicted with damage because of their neglect, as will the climate of the planet. Mother Ocean shall show her disapproval by causing her greatest predator to attack the people of this land all along its large coastline, almost all at once. But this protest shall neither be seen nor understood as an important message. Wars and damage shall continue to follow, as will one natural disaster after another, claiming lives and lands while leaving behind trails of devastation. Truly helpless shall the land of promise appear, despite all its illusions of might, as it faces the corrective forces of nature.

Let it be known that the disasters that we speak of can all be averted if the people of this nation unite, through a shift in mass consciousness, towards peace, tolerance and a clear desire to end their cycle of downturn and war. They must replace foolishness with wisdom, greed with compassion, and manipulated law and disorder with true justice and fairness. They must strive to discover leaders who can take them away from war and destruction, and restore the place of their nation in the Twelfth and the Thirteenth Civilisation, as the land of promise. This can be, and we shall help them, for this is indeed a great land in which have lived great people. . . .

Preventing the decline of the Twelfth Civilisation

When the Twelfth Civilisation approaches the point of transformation (2012), it can either destroy itself within a few (cosmic) cycles, or transform into the Thirteenth Civilisation, with true power and unity at its core. We shall emerge as a living Consciousness in humanity as this time approaches. The first signs of our emergence shall be the crop circles that will appear in fields and forests at places of our choosing. These circles shall mark the return of our way of growing food through harmony with the earth and respect for the intelligence of water. These circles shall reveal that we will not permit the life of the water on this planet to die as a result of damage at the hands of humanity.

The second sign of our emergence shall come when there occurs a shift in Consciousness throughout humanity, with respect to preserving and protecting Mother Earth. This shift in Consciousness shall give rise to laws and methods of living that fully respect the wellbeing of Mother Earth.

The third sign of our emergence shall be witnessed when humanity at large shall begin to embrace spirituality over ritualistic religions. The concept of meditation, which is the hallmark of our civilisation, shall spread freely throughout humanity. This is because meditation embodies the key to restoring the harmonic energy of the earth, so that it may maintain its place as a home to creation in the universe, unlike its sister, the Red Planet.

We shall disclose to the world, through instruments of the Origin, the seven Azirahs on the planet, where specific energies of equilibrium are focused. Humanity shall be led to these Azirahs where meditations shall be carried out by masses of people who will be called upon to do so by the Voice of Inspiration.

These meditations will restore the equilibrium in each of the seven Azirahs, resulting in complete restoration of the harmonic energy of the earth. This process shall bring about powers of unification in humanity, which shall pave the way for positive transformation into the Thirteenth Civilisation. This must happen before the transformation point (2012) in the cosmic cycles.

The seven Azirahs exist in different parts of the planet, which shall be revealed to humanity through inspiration.

The First Azirah—Birth

The First Azirah represents the focal point of all the birth energies of the planet. It lies in the Sacred Mountain that stands close to the sea in the northern part of the Great Peninsula, visited by pilgrims who come to offer prayers at its peak. At one time, this Sacred Mountain existed under the sea and in its bosom shall always remain symbols of the ocean infinite. The energies of life on the planet, and everywhere else, are vested by the Origin in Mother Water. The First Azirah is the place where an umbilical cord connects the birth energies of Mother Water with all the life forms. The focal point of this umbilical cord lies in a natural horseshoe half way up the Sacred Mountain. The blessing of this horseshoe is such that one half of it, which is seen, is manifested on the earth. The other half, which is unseen, is manifested in the universe. This horseshoe represents life energy in completeness, for all living forms have a physical expression that is seen, which begins and ends on the earth; and an unseen aspect that exists permanently in the universe before, during and after the existence of the physical form.

The Sacred Mountain is bonded with the ocean infinite through blessed waters that come from sacred clouds, whose waters flow as healing springs through the blessed horseshoe before being reunited with the ocean infinite. The sacred clouds can be witnessed by beings of pure conscience at dawn, as they come to grace the earth with the blessing of birth.

A meditation by inspired souls at the First Azirah shall help restore equilibrium in all the birth energies on this planet. Birth and death rest on two ends of a scale, which shall tilt markedly towards death at the end of the Twelfth Civilisation. Meditation at the First Azirah shall bring life that shall prevail over death, through the power and purity of Mother Water, returning the scale back to complete equilibrium. The First Azirah is the place where humanity must begin the process of restoring the harmony of the planet.

The Second Azirah—Unity

The Second Azirah lies in our land (on this continent), where all the life energies of the planet are focused in circles that reside beneath the earth. Life energy is pure unity that brings together essence and form. When this unity exists, life energy resonates between the planet and the universe in complete freedom and harmony. However, when this unity is damaged by the negative energies of thought and the loss of purity of water, life energy ceases to freely resonate within the earth and the universe, thus affecting the harmony of the planet. The power of meditation, positive thought and conscious cleansing of Mother Water are the keys to restoring this unity.

The Second Azirah lies on our land, to the south, in a circle of Oneness, amidst the union of two rivers. Precious springs flow under this circle and come to the surface from time to time. Within the circle of Oneness reside thirteen circles, twelve of which represent the number of civilisations to come, as well as the number of messages of Oneness that shall be endowed upon humanity by the Origin, through inspired and enlightened beings. The thirteenth circle, which is independent of the first twelve, may become the hallmark of the Thirteenth Civilisation, as it brings together the life energies on this planet in the form of one pure unity, which shall draw together all creation, including beings of all races, cultures, religions and beliefs.

Meditations performed by inspired souls at this Azirah shall help complete the thirteenth circle and restore equilibrium in all the life energies of this planet, from the seen to the unseen. People from across the world shall come to the Second Azirah, to the circle of Oneness, to perform meditation, where they will find peace, healing and Light.

The Third Azirah—Memory

In the Third Azirah lies the memory of the planet, where all the knowledge that has manifested on earth since its beginning has been focused. As civilisations come and go, the planet records all that has happened and all that has been learnt. This information lies within a memory that is not different from the human memory, except that it is permanent. The Third Azirah is connected to every corner of the planet, through the flow of streams of information that complete their journey in its core. This Azirah has been the home of some of the oldest civilisations on earth. It is the cradle within which the human being and other creatures of intelligence have evolved in physical form. The world of the dolphins also vests its knowledge here.

The Third Azirah lies in the Great Valley that divides our sister continent to the east. It shall be the place of many archaeological discoveries in the Twelfth Civilisation. The heart of this Azirah lies in the sphere of a pyramid, created by Mother Nature, under which flow abundant streams, cool and warm, that complete their journey in the Great Pool from where begins the Great River that feeds the continent towards the north. Underneath this pyramid are rings of knowledge that resemble the rings in the trunks of old trees. At Her place of choosing, Mother Water appears in this Azirah with love and warmth, flowing in peace to nourish all creation. Meditations by inspired souls in this Great Valley, at the appointed place, shall help restore the equilibrium of all knowledge that exists within the planet. This restoration shall renew the bond between humanity and the dolphins.

Let it be known that knowledge is timeless and eternal, and it rests in the soul of every creation. Knowledge is ever growing, and within Planet Earth it rests through an anchor in this Great Valley. Those who meditate at the Third Azirah shall gain much in knowledge, for herein resides the reservoir of all the information that is manifested in the planet.

The Fourth Azirah—Life Elements

Planet Earth has been endowed with four elements of life, which are water, earth, wind and fire. These elements make up all the matter on earth at a physical level, as well as carry intelligence and knowledge at a non-physical level. These elements of life must come together in unity to make all the physical living and nonliving forms complete. As the Twelfth Civilisation comes to an end, these elements will have been subjected to degradation by humanity, both singularly and collectively. This degradation will be evident through illnesses in all living forms, epidemics, drastic changes in climate and landscapes, and the emergence of mutations of genes that no longer resemble any of the normal life codes. At this time, it shall be essential for humanity to take steps to stop all degradation and seek to unite the four elements through the power of positive Consciousness and purity of the environment.

In the ocean that lies to our east is an island on which shall stand a tall mountain, through which the lava of the earth shall flow into the ocean, linking fire and water, amidst energies of wind. This mountain shall be surrounded by six siblings (islands), which lie off the northwestern coast of our sister continent to the east, below the umbrella of the Great Peninsula. In this mountain shall exist vegetation and climates that represent all seasons and landforms, from deserts to forests to grass fields, lava plains and a snow-capped peak. Beneath this mountain flow abundant springs of water that complete their journey in the Great Ocean. The sacred clouds also visit this blessed mountain at dawn, to be seen and known only by beings of pure conscience.

Close to one of its six siblings (islands) lies the Great Vortex of sweet water in the middle of the ocean, whose energy and intelligence fields remain in perfection. This vortex, which represents the seed of power for the element wind, shall be seen and known only by a precious few.

Meditation by inspired souls at a specific place on this mountain shall bring the four elements into complete equilibrium, restoring all the nutritive life forces of the planet. People who meditate here shall leave with great strength at a physical level, for in them shall be reinforced all the elements of their physical being.

The Fifth Azirah—Anchor of the Sun

Planet Earth is a precious child of the sun. At the time of its parting from the sun, its blessed parent promised to provide nutritive energies to all the life forms that were to be hosted by the earth in the eras to come. The link between the earth and its parent is powerful and alive, for without it, all life would cease to exist on the planet.

In the midst of the great vast ocean to our west lies a group of islands where the Fifth Azirah forms an anchor, holding together all the nutritive energies of the sun as they manifest on earth during every moment of its existence. This anchor extends from the sun to the surface of the earth, and deep down into its very core. The damage that shall be caused by the Twelfth Civilisation to the protective veils (in the upper atmosphere) of the planet will cause this anchor to weaken, causing severe fluctuations in climate, as well as formation of genetically altered organisms that shall mutate from existing organisms due to the uneven intensity and frequency of certain rays from the sun. The loss of these protective veils, together with excessive artificial light (created by humanity), shall alter the equilibrium between night and day, causing energetic inversions that shall release waters that have lain dormant in solid form for eras gone by. This shall give rise to unbalanced tidal patterns that affect the equilibrium of the ocean, the earth's gravitational field and the linkage between the earth and the moon.

The Fifth Azirah lies in the heart of a small and mostly unknown family of islands, in the vicinity of a large island that borders the baby continent. Amidst these little islands exists a small lagoon of turquoise water. When the tide of the ocean subsides one can walk between the tiny islands through the turquoise lagoon. Herein rests the Fifth Azirah, where the sun and the earth remain eternally bonded. With all the damage that will have been inflicted upon the climate, gravitational field and the genetic codes within the planet, it will be essential for equilibrium to be restored at this point in order to harmonise the connection between the sun and the earth.

Meditations performed by inspired souls at this place shall restore harmony between the earth and its parent, the sun. Those who come to this place to meditate shall gain strength and nutritive energies that shall be of benefit to everyone that they encounter.

The Sixth Azirah—Meeting of the Seven Worlds

All the souls and life energies reside within the seven worlds, which can be understood as distinct levels of existence in the spiritual journey. Each world, or state of existence, provides a soul with a platform for gaining experience, learning and growth in knowledge according to the objective of its spiritual journey. Some of these worlds are seen and others are unseen. As souls journey through the earth, in a visible physical form at one end, and an unseen eternal form at another, there is growth of knowledge that comes from the power of higher thought, which resides at the level of the intellect. The intellect is the luminous boundary that connects the lower mind with the infinite intelligence of the Origin.

The level of conflict in the Twelfth Civilisation, both internal and external, shall severely impact the power that resides within humanity at the level of the intellect, which engages with all the seven worlds. The growth of negative forces in the earth, through the actions and thoughts of humanity, shall cause a destructive displacement at this point because one of the seven worlds is the World of Thought, where everything exists in the form of nonmaterial, pure waves of thought energy. This place is critical to the maintenance of harmonic energies of the planet. Therefore it is essential that this imbalance be corrected in time, before the point of transformation.

The Sixth Azirah exists at a point on this earth where all seven worlds intersect, yielding Light and pure equilibrium at the level of the soul. This place rests in the Great Canyon in the land of promise. Rivers flow in this canyon where temples and shrines form naturally within its rocks. It bears all the energies of the colour crimson, which flows gracefully to the point where all the seven worlds intersect. This point of intersection is filled with powers that can be experienced by beings of pure conscience.

Meditation performed by inspired souls at this Azirah shall help eliminate the spiritual displacement at the point of intersection of the seven worlds. It shall restore pure equilibrium at this critical point, which shall lead towards completion of restoration of harmony in the planet. Those people who meditate at this point shall experience important dimensions of the seven worlds that shall enrich their spiritual journey immensely.

The Seventh Azirah—Link to the Universe

The Seventh Azirah lies in the heart of the tallest mountain on this planet, at which the earth connects directly with the universe. This is the point where all the evolutionary messages from the earth are transmitted to the universe. It is also the place where the evolutionary responses of the universe are received by the earth, pertaining to all the changes that need to occur in the planet in order to adapt it for life in the universe.

This point of contact is no different from how human beings are connected with their environment. For every change that occurs in the way of life of humans, there is a transmission of information to the environment (nature). The response from the environment causes changes in the human genetic Code that adapts the body so that it can sustain itself in its altered environment. The shrinking of human earlobes over many generations is a good example. At one time human beings shall rely to a large extent on their sense of hearing to survive. As this necessity diminishes, the body of the human beings shall evolve through a revised genetic Code that shrinks the earlobe size. It is the communication between the body and its environment that fosters this evolutionary change.

The earth has a similar connection with the universe, and its focal point of information flow, the Seventh Azirah, lies in the tallest mountain. There is a valley and a plateau from where the peaks of this mountain can be seen.

Within the plateau flow crystal-clear waters that surface amidst divinely endowed beauty. The loss in harmonic energy of the earth shall be communicated to the universe from this point. The corrective response from the universe, requiring the replacement of the Twelfth Civilisation, the cause of the loss of harmony, will be received here.

Therefore, after equilibrium has been restored at the first six Azirahs, a very important meditation by inspired souls must take place at this seventh point, where full equilibrium and harmony between the planet and the universe can be restored. This restoration of harmony will be communicated into the universe, resulting in a change in the corresponding evolutionary message from the universe. The new message will be one of propagation of a powerful force of unification in the Twelfth Civilisation, paving the way for the Thirteenth Civilisation, whose beings are awaited in numerous planets and galaxies (cosmic bodies), as they shall start a new era of existence of their civilisation beyond their planet. For this to happen, their life on earth must be united, strong and rich in the essence of Oneness and Light. Only then can they venture beyond Planet Earth.

People who meditate at this Seventh Azirah shall open within them the faculties of telepathy and communication with their greater world.

Let it be known that the forces of darkness shall do everything in their power to prevent humanity from restoring the harmony of the planet. Beings who seek to bring Light and unite humanity shall be opposed, attacked and discredited before the eyes of the world by the dark forces that shall seek to engage through fear and conflict, as they have done throughout the Twelfth Civilisation. But they shall not prevail, for the forces of the positive shall overcome darkness completely, through love and abundance of Light. That is our promise. . . .

The Thirteenth Civilisation

After equilibrium has been restored in each of the seven Azirahs, there shall be a great, positive transformation in human consciousness towards unity, peace and compassion. This transformation will dominate all creation, including the conscience of every single human being regardless of race, religion, culture or place in life. The inhabitants of the superpowers, as well as those of the less powerful nations, shall unite in peace. The disadvantaged shall end their hidden war, as they too will be inspired to unite with the rest of humanity and to seek solutions to their grievances through peaceful means. This major shift in human consciousness shall leave no room for war, conflict or divisive forces. Leaders that promulgate fear and conflict shall be replaced by voices of consensus. There shall be an overwhelming tide of uniting energies, like the energy of fusion of the sun, that brings humanity together as one. This will mark a complete reversal in the process of division and fission that has prevailed in humanity until this point of transformation.

Two cosmic cycles later, as humanity embraces a new and an enriched level of empowerment, a technology shall be revealed that completely eliminates the need for highly polluting energy sources such as oil and fossil fuels. Up to this point, those who control fossil fuel reserves shall have dominated others by virtue of their economic power that comes from possession and exploitation of fuel. Most of the pollution in the planet will have been created by the use of these primitive fuels.

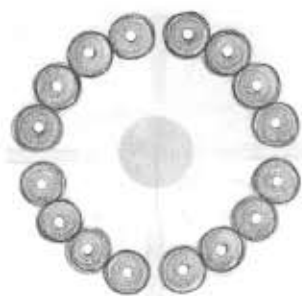

The new energy source shall be water, whose supply shall be abundant. Energy will be drawn from water using simple, unique techniques that cause destabilisation of the water molecule and energy matrix, which freely release energy in a manageable manner for propulsion and transmission. The end product of this energy extraction shall be the reformation of water molecules that shall be catalysed by the nutritive energies of the sun. Hence pollution of the planet shall come to a swift end.

The replacement of fossil fuels by water as the key energy source shall completely alter the economic structure of the human world, as there shall be a rapid redistribution of wealth and resources in a more fair and equitable manner. The economic currency shall change from money to energy units, which shall represent the underlying value behind every economy. This will yield healthy and passive economic decisions that are in harmony with the environment. The Thirteenth Civilisation will call it the Energy Economy, which shall promote reuse of all the earth's resources, as it shall be more profitable and energy efficient to do so.

The Thirteenth Civilisation shall witness dissolution of political and economic boundaries, bringing about a new order of unity and peace. This civilisation will make tremendous scientific progress, which will include new methods of propulsion that will enable rapid travel between the earth and other planets, galaxies and life-supporting cosmic bodies. This will cause humanity to open new frontiers of life and growth in the universe. The human beings of the Thirteenth Civilisation shall promulgate their consciousness of unity, equilibrium and Light to distant homes within the universe. They will replace us as a living Consciousness that will spread far into the distance from Mother Earth.

When this has happened, we shall rest again in the knowledge that our Consciousness of unity and Light will have been reborn within humanity, to live eternally beyond all the boundaries of time, space and matter. Then we shall indeed rest in peace forever."

Chapter 21

THE JOURNEY HOME

Juan listened intently as Asakhavana related the ten Ahavas that he was to take back to his world. After the last Ahava had been read Ohumah, Oriana, Asakhavana and Juan stood still and silent in the cave. Once again the atmosphere began to fill up with the fragrance of sandalwood, as they were embraced by the presence of the Great Soul, Oriya.

Juan felt a powerful energy flow through him and for a few moments his mind became completely blank. He was aware that something was happening to him but he did not know what it was. After what felt like ages, Juan opened his eyes. The scent of sandalwood had gone and he was alone in the cave, surrounded by the Great Scrolls. He did not feel afraid being alone, rather he felt completely at peace; he realised that his mind had been filled with infinite knowledge. He could remember every word in the ten Ahavas. With complete clarity, he had internalised all the information that had been conveyed to him during his visit to the world of the Alacanzera.

As he reflected upon the first Ahava, which talked about the rise of the Alacanzera, Juan wondered how their civilisation had ended its presence physically on earth, after completing their mission. As he closed his eyes his mind suddenly flashed back to the time when the earth had been prepared by the Alacanzera to become a home to new civilisations—a playground of learning and experience for billions of souls that would now come to the planet along their spiritual journey. Juan could see a full-moon night with the Alacanzेरans all sitting in meditation in the circles of Oneness, throughout their land. He then witnessed Mother Earth, in the midst of a gentle tremor, open her bosom and gracefully, with love and salutation, absorb the land of the Alacanzera into the ocean. The dolphins had all gathered to receive their human counterparts, who would now give up their physical form to transform into the world of the eternal. As Mother Earth closed her bosom after receiving her precious healing beings, Juan saw the rocks shift amidst a huge wave of earth. The result was a tall mountain that elegantly overlooked the ocean. This mountain was later named Avila.

The Alacanzera left the world in peace, leaving behind little or no physical evidence of their existence. They had transformed into a living Consciousness of unity and Light that would again someday awaken, when the earth was in need of their powers of healing and harmony. Juan found comfort in the fact that they had made a promise to arise again and live as a positive Consciousness in every human being, helping his civilisation to restore harmony on the planet, and saving it from self-destruction. His heart was filled with hope as he reflected upon the possibility of the Thirteenth Civilisation that would take his world to great new heights of progress and accomplishment, well beyond Planet Earth.

Juan smiled as he recalled the prophecy of the Twelfth Civilisation, which stated that the Alacanzera would continue to watch over the world through the eyes that resided in this Blessed Mountain. He remembered that they had left a gateway in Avila that linked their world with his. He felt sad, however, at the thought of crossing this mystical gateway back to his world, leaving behind the beauty and wonders he had seen and experienced in the world of the Alacanzera.

Juan closed his eyes once again and in the distance heard a soothing voice. As he flowed closer to the voice, he recognised it to be that of the Maestro, who was in the process of concluding the meditation. He heard the Maestro ask the gathering of one hundred and one people to open their eyes, and as Juan did so, he realised that he was back at the top of Avila, with the group. He looked to his right and felt a deep sense of joy as he saw Marie Carmen sitting next to him. He squeezed her hand as he recalled having been away from her for what felt like an eternity. He then looked into the eyes of the Maestro, who smiled back knowingly. Juan had seen that same expression in Ohumah's eyes! Sitting next to the Maestro was Oriana, who also looked back at him knowingly. She was wearing a necklace that had the shining blue crystal that he had given her when they were together in the crystal cave! Juan felt a strange sensation on his throat. As he moved his hand to scratch it he felt the crystal that he was now wearing on his necklace. It was the brilliant white crystal that Oriana had given him when they were in the crystal cave! He recalled placing the crystal in his pocket. He wondered how it had mysteriously appeared on his necklace.

Juan then knew with certainty that his journey to the world of the Alacanzera had been real—as real as he felt sitting next to Marie Carmen, holding her hand at that moment. Everything he had seen, heard, experienced and learned was alive in his mind.

THE ROAD AHEAD

After returning from Mount Avila Juan spent a few days meditating on his experience and recalling in great detail everything that had been said to him. He took long walks, consumed in deep contemplation, at Pepe and Oriana's ranch, where Marie Carmen and he would be staying for a while yet. Every time he looked at Oriana, he remembered how beautiful she had appeared in her Alacazeran robes. The jeans and sweatshirts certainly did not suit her anymore! Oriana was very discreet about her special relationship with Juan and she refrained from showing her affection for him publicly. Marie Carmen often asked Juan if he was okay, especially when she knew that his mind was far away from what was happening around them. The main thought on Juan's mind was how he should proceed in sharing all that he had learned during his visit to the blessed world of the Alacanzera. He realised finally that he would be guided.

On the twelfth day after the meditation, Juan took a walk by himself on the beach alongside Mount Avila. Marie Carmen had gone shopping with Pepe and Oriana. After walking a while he found a comfortable spot and sat down on the sand. He removed his necklace and stared at the beautiful white crystal Oriana had given him. He could feel Oriana's love in the crystal. It made him feel uncomfortable—she was the wife of his best friend. Yet he also knew that his love for Oriana was pure and had no sexual dimension attached to it. As he observed the sun's rays sparkle off the surface of the crystal, he suddenly became aware that he was no longer alone. He saw Orishah with her beautiful, radiant, smiling face emerge from the crystal. She had come from the world of the Alacanzera to join him!

Juan opened his arms for a hug, then realised she was not there in the flesh. She was like a mirage, visible but not tangible. Nevertheless he was delighted to be with her, regardless of the form she had taken. He then realised that Orishah was not the only one who had come. As his eyes glanced towards the ocean he recognised the presence of Armeeshah all around him. Armeeshah, who had become a droplet of water when he bid farewell to Juan at the living waters in the world of the Alacanzera, was here now, shining through as pure essence in every droplet in the ocean.

As Juan glanced towards the horizon he could see the smiling face of Asakhavana lighting up the blue sky. This was a special moment of reunion. He could feel the warmth, love and energy of Orishah, Armeeshah and Asakhavana flow through every element of his being. Ever since his return Juan had patiently awaited guidance as to what he should do next. He had known that his blessed ancestors would contact him again soon. And here they were, all around and within him.

Juan felt an arm on his shoulder. He turned to see the Maestro, who was holding the hand of Oriana. In flesh and blood!

"I, I thought you were with Marie Carmen and Pepe," Juan said, looking curiously at Oriana.

She smiled. "Yes, I am with Marie Carmen and Pepe, but I am also here with the Maestro and you. Since I am a physical, living manifestation of the Alacanzera in your world, I have been endowed with the ability to be in many places, in physical form, at the same time."

With all that Juan had experienced in the world of the Alacanzera, Oriana's remark did not surprise him in the least.

The Maestro said, "Juan Lopez, today is the twelfth day following your return from the world of the Alacanzera. You have been back in the Twelfth Civilisation for twelve days. Now it is time to think about the thirteenth day and the Thirteenth Civilisation. The year 2012 is rapidly approaching and there is much that needs to be done to prepare humanity for the great transformation.

You know that many people have predicted doom and gloom as the most likely scenario for our civilisation. Yet our blessed ancestors have said that they will do all they can to help humanity transform into a great Thirteenth Civilisation.”

Juan looked at the Maestro. “You were with us all the time in the world of the Alacanzera, weren’t you? I was told that you had the knowledge of the seven Azirahs, and that you would help us to discover them in time to complete the harmonisation of the planet that needs to occur before 2012.”

The Maestro smiled. “Yes, Juan Lopez, I was with you all the time. However, I shall let you reflect upon whether or not you physically saw me in the world of the Alacanzera. As for the seven Azirahs—yes, I have been blessed with the knowledge about them.”

Oriana interjected, “It is now time for us to encourage humanity to participate in the restoration of the harmony of the planet. We need to bring to their attention the seriousness of the current state of affairs in the world.”

The Maestro added, “But this should not be done through fear. Remember, fear is negative. It fuels thought pollution. Whatever we do must be based on drawing upon positive powers. We must focus on the solutions that we have at our disposal to assist our civilisation towards great new heights of progress. We have to be focused and fearless in the face of the opposition that we may encounter, because we know that we have all the help we need to bring about the positive shift in human consciousness before 2012. In addition to investing extensive effort in positive communication, we need to accomplish at least one or two global meditations every year at the Azirahs, so that we may complete all seven of them by the year 2010, well before the critical year of 2012.

“Can you share with me the knowledge about the seven Azirahs?” Juan asked.

“By all means, Juan Lopez,” the Maestro replied. “Let us analyse each Azirah in some detail, based on what was said about them in the Great Scrolls.”

The First Azirah—Birth

“The Sacred Mountain that is referred to in the prophecy is Montserrat, which lies in the Great Peninsula, which is the Iberian Peninsula, or Spain,” the Maestro continued. “It is located approximately sixty kilometres from the city of Barcelona. For the past one thousand years, this mountain has been visited by pilgrims from all over the world, to offer prayers at a church and monastery located at the top of the mountain. While most have focused their attention at the peak of this sacred mountain, the birth energies of the earth surface at a point approximately halfway up the mountain, next to a hill that has the shape of a conical pyramid. On June 7, 2003 I identified the horseshoe in Montserrat. The landscape at this place is curved, in the form of a perfect horseshoe. Attached to this horseshoe is an invisible horseshoe, and when you combine the two horseshoes, they form a circle. Juan Lopez, as you may recall from what you learned during your visit to the Alacanzera, life energy has the shape of a spiral, which is in fact an ever-shrinking circle at one end, and an ever-growing one at the other. Therefore the Horseshoe of Life, as I named it, embodies the vortex of life in visible, physical form on one side, and in invisible, energetic form on the other. The energy that resides in the unseen part of the vortex is what we often refer to as ‘essence.’ In the Horseshoe of Life, this essence, or life energy, flows from the unseen and takes birth in the physical form. This is the reason the scrolls referred to this place as the focal point of the birth energies of the planet.”

The Maestro added, “Ziraat is a universal word that I have used to describe the umbilical cord that connects the human body to its life energy source, or Origin. In the same way, the Horseshoe of Life at Montserrat possesses the umbilical cord that links all the life forces in the planet with the Origin (or Creator). Hence this Azirah represents the Ziraat of the planet. Over a thousand years ago, the people who lived close to Montserrat could hear the name 'Mont Ziraat' echoing day and night from within the heart of the mountain. They ended up calling it Montserrat in keeping with the French phonetics. However, its real name is Mount Ziraat, which signifies the focal point of all the birth energies of the planet.

"A few kilometres away, near the village of Castellefort de Boix, we found a spring, which I named The Spring of Life two days before a group meditation. Water gushes from the earth at this place and flows in the form of a surface and an underground stream into the ocean. The Spring of Life is connected at an energy level with all the rivers and oceans of the earth. After completing a group meditation on June 9, 2003 at the Horseshoe of Life, we drove to the Spring of Life to deliver our salutations and prayers to the ocean infinite. After this meditation, many positive changes began to occur in the world. Today many people go to the Horseshoe of Life, to meditate and offer their love, prayers and gratitude to Mother Water and the planet. Now there is also a new baby spring that flows within the Horseshoe of Life that delivers cool, fresh, pure, healing water to all those who partake of it. So, my dear Juan Lopez, we have completed the First Azirah. I am sure that over time, as people learn about the powers that exist in this Azirah, they will come and benefit from the peace and blessings that reside there, while also adding their spiritual energies towards the goal of restoring the harmony of the planet."

Oriana added, "Juan Lopez, significantly, the meditation at Montserrat took place on June 9, 2003. According to the Mayan calendar, this is a day of healing and service. It is characterised by 2, the number of the Master, which is the sum of $1 + 1$. Or, viewed from a different aspect, $9 + 6 + 2 + 0 + 0 + 3 = 20$, and $2 + 0 = 2$. The star of Cancer was predominant on this day. It is also interesting to note that an event of such special significance took place at Montserrat on that particular day, without any previous planning or reference to the Mayan Calendar."

Oriana continued, "It is also interesting to note that, including the Maestro, there were 74 people present at the meditations: 7 plus 4 equals 11, which adds up (1+1) to the Master number 2. And the Maestro's birth star is Cancer, and according to his birth and name Code, he is a Perfect Two!"

The Maestro smiled at Juan. "Juan Lopez, the First Azirah is now complete, and its strength will grow as humanity partakes of its energies. This now leaves us with six more Azirahs to complete."

Juan looked around him to see the radiant faces of Orishah, Armeeshah and Asakhavana nodding with approval.

The Second Azirah—Unity

"Juan Lopez, the Second Azirah, as described in the scrolls, lies in Venezuela along the energetic matrix of the Grand Savannah," the Maestro continued. "The thirteen circles referred to in the scrolls actually traverse the entire country of Venezuela, from the Grand Savannah all the way up to Mount Avila. On November 16, 2003 I visited Ciudad Bolivar in Venezuela and drove towards Pôrto Odaz. I identified the place where the Second Azirah is manifested on earth. It lies approximately fifty kilometres away from the point where the River Orinoco meets the Caronin River. Under this Azirah, amidst a network of underground springs, lie the thirteen circles of Oneness. One of these springs comes to the surface close by, near the starting point of one of the several rivers.

"The circles of Oneness at the Second Azirah represent the focal point of all life energies of this planet. It is a point of pure unity, which brings together the whole of humanity—all religions, races, cultures and beliefs. It is a place of peace, unity and healing for the entire humanity. I have conducted a meditation at this Azirah in preparation for a large-scale meditation, which must occur within the next four years or so. People will come to the Second Azirah from all over the world to offer their love, prayers and energies of unity, which will help create a rapidly growing, positive Consciousness of unity in humanity. Remember, Juan Lopez, that people who come to participate in this meditation will also benefit a great deal in their personal, material and spiritual journey. The universe has a special way of rewarding souls that help foster harmony and unity.”

“Is the Second Azirah ready for a global meditation to take place?” Juan asked.

“The Second Azirah is of great importance as it represents a place of pure unity,” the Maestro replied. “Therefore the meditation at this place needs to occur at a time when people all over the world have become aware of the importance of the whole process of restoring the harmony of the planet. We may hold the meditation at this Azirah closer to 2009, after we have completed some of the other Azirahs. It is a question of creating awareness, Juan Lopez, for then we can be most effective.”

Oriana added, “The tide has begun, and there are great positive forces in the universe that will work with us to make it possible.”

The Third Azirah — Knowledge

“The Third Azirah lies in the Great Rift Valley in Kenya,” the Maestro continued. “This is the focal point of all the knowledge and information that has manifested within the planet. It is, in fact, the memory of the planet. You see, Juan Lopez, the Great Rift Valley is the home of some of the oldest human civilisations, dating back to the time when human beings were evolving physically from apes. One of the oldest human skulls, called zinjanthropus, was discovered in this valley in the last century.”

Oriana added, “Knowledge is universal, and information flows between all corners of the planet through thought. Therefore, Juan Lopez, the Third Azirah is also a uniting force for humanity, because it brings together the knowledge of all thought that has ever taken birth on this planet. It is like the core of a super brain.”

“Can a global meditation at this Azirah unite humanity at the level of thought?” Juan asked.

“Absolutely, my friend!” the Maestro replied. “When the Alacanzera talked of ‘living as a Consciousness in humanity,’ they were referring to the concept of living as a positive force within human thought. Therefore the global meditation at the Third Azirah, which is the focal point of all thought, needs to take place very soon. I discovered the site of the Third Azirah on July 2, 2005. I located the natural pyramid and the spring that is described in the Great Scrolls at a remote, forested place that lies close to the town of Gilgil in Kenya. There is a large water reservoir associated with this Azirah, called Lake Elmenteita. This lake and the main underground networks of rivers that flow within the sphere of the pyramid connect physically and energetically with Lake Victoria, which is the source of the River Nile.”

“How did you manage to find such a remote, isolated site that is covered by the forest?” Juan asked. “Isn’t it like looking for a needle in a haystack?”

The Maestro smiled. “When the Voice of Inspiration speaks to you, the needle can stand out as clearly as the sun in the sky!”

Oriana winked at Juan. "After your visit to the land of the Alacanzera, I am sure you know what he means."

The Maestro added, "Juan Lopez, we are preparing to hold a global meditation at the Third Azirah in the year 2006. Participants will come from all over the world, and those who cannot be physically present will participate in the meditation from wherever they are. Remember, thought is universal."

The Fourth Azirah—Elements of Life

"Juan Lopez, the mountain that is referred to in the Great Scrolls is Mount Teide, which is a dormant volcano on the island of Tenerife, in the Canary Islands," the Maestro continued. "The sweet-water vortex mentioned in the Great Scrolls lies off the coast of the island of Lanzarote. The Canary Islands are a unique group of islands in the Atlantic Ocean. As a matter of fact, the land of the Alacanzera lies under the sea, starting from Mount Avila and extending towards the Canaries.

"Mount Teide is a special mountain in that it embodies landscapes and vegetation that range from desert to tropical forest, lava field and alpine forest. Its peak is covered with snow for at least six months of each year. All the four elements of life—earth, wind, water and fire—are focused within this mountain. These four elements are more symbolic of the physical form than the spiritual. Yet they must come together to sustain life. These four elements are universal to humanity—and to all creation for that matter. Therefore a global meditation at this mountain will help to re-energise the life-sustaining powers of the planet, which have suffered much degradation at the hands of humanity. Restoration of the harmony and equilibrium at this Azirah will result in a powerful process that will lead to the restoration of the environment. This is why it is logical that after completing the meditation in the Great Rift Valley, the Third Azirah, we should proceed to perform the next global meditation at Mount Teide, the Fourth Azirah. I will identify and prepare the exact location for the meditation in the near future.”

“When you prepare a place for a global meditation, what exactly do you do?” Juan asked.

“I go to the site with people who are selected by the Origin to perform a deeply focused meditation, through which we draw together the positive energies of the Azirah,” the Maestro replied. “You see, Juan Lopez, the power of an Azirah is not confined solely to the physical place, it also lies in the manner in which the place connects with the rest of the creation, at a spiritual and an energetic level. So when I meditate at an Azirah, I seek to bring together the powerful forces that unite the whole creation at the level of the essence. I seek to link the essence with the form in order to complete all the dimensions of the Azirah.”

“How does the Origin choose who goes with you?” asked Juan.

“I just put the proposition out there in the universe and then go with the flow,” the Maestro replied. “People who are meant to join me turn up at the location in question. I do not play any part in the selection process. Sometimes there are people who wish to join me but encounter situations that prevent them from being present. Then there are others who may not have planned on joining me but end up being present as a result of unexplainable sets of circumstances! That is how the universe works, my dear friend. I do not intervene in any way in the selection process.”

Oriana added, “Juan Lopez, after we complete the global meditation at the Third and the Fourth Azirahs, we will see important changes begin to take place in the world. The tidal waves of positive energy will begin to manifest and become evident to humanity beyond doubt. There will not be any confusion about this.”

The Fifth Azirah—Nourishment

“Juan Lopez, do you recall the visions you were shown of how the sun gave birth to Planet Earth?” asked the Maestro.

“Yes, it was spectacular,” replied Juan. “I had never imagined that the earth was so closely connected to the sun, through a parent-child relationship.”

“Everything that exists on the earth is nourished by the sun,” the Maestro continued. “If there were no sun, there would be no life. The nourishment from the sun comes in an infinite number of forms. You are aware of only a few of them, such as light, heat and the specialised energy bands that were revealed to you by the Alacanzera. You see, the linkage between the sun and the earth is like the connection that exists between your blood and all the cells in your body. However, although you can see the blood, you cannot see all the nutritive, life-sustaining energies of the sun.

“The Fifth Azirah is at a location on the earth where all the nutritive energies of the sun are focused. These energies flow from the sun to this particular Azirah, from where they are then dissipated, in equilibrium, throughout the planet and its atmosphere. These energies eventually return from all around the planet to this Azirah, from where they flow back to the sun once again, but in a different form. You may have learned in physics classes that the energy of the sun is based on fusion, which means the coming together of billions of energetic forces into one singular force. Therefore the sun could not exist if the energetic forces from the earth and all cosmic bodies that interact with the sun did not return to its critical mass on a constant basis. So, Juan Lopez, the sun can provide limitless energy, as long as these energies return after completing their nutritive cycles.”

Oriana interjected, "The Fifth Azirah is like the lungs in your body, where oxygen is received when you breathe in and carbon dioxide is discharged when you breathe out. Both actions are critical to the functioning of the body. In a similar way, nutritive energy is received from the sun at this Azirah, and spent energy from the planet is returned to the sun from here."

"This obviously makes the Fifth Azirah critical for the sustenance of the planet," Juan concluded.

"Absolutely, Juan Lopez," the Maestro replied. "The Fifth Azirah lies within a group of islands called Aitutaki, in the Pacific Ocean. Aitutaki is a tiny part of the Cook Islands and does not appear on most large-scale maps, to the best of my knowledge. The Islands of Aitutaki come together in a circle around a lagoon of emerald green and turquoise waters. When the tide drops, beautiful sand banks appear in the lagoon and you can actually walk from island to island. The natural beauty of this place is simply spectacular.

"A global meditation at this Azirah will create a positive step towards restoring the flow of energy between the sun and the earth, and hence, its climate. The Twelfth Civilisation has adversely impacted this energy flow and it is now time for restoration. Heaven only knows how dearly Mother Earth awaits that moment! I believe that those who are fortunate enough to participate in this meditation, physically or spiritually, will gain true abundance in their lives."

"It seems like we have a great deal to do in the little time that is left," Juan responded.

Oriana and the Maestro laughed. "You have finally realised the obvious, Juan Lopez!"

After a few moments of silence the Maestro's face became serious and he looked into Juan's eyes. "The Sixth Azirah is unique because it encompasses states of being about which you know little. I am sure you will have heard, from time to time, that there is more than one world in which we can exist. However, the subject as a whole is quite a mystery, because it is difficult for people to comprehend this concept unless they are able to merge science and spirituality in their thought processes. Most people treat science and spirituality as two distinct and separate aspects. They think science is based on so-called 'realism,' which harbours scepticism that can be healthy at times and counterproductive at others. The essence of spirituality, on the other hand, is based on infinite possibilities. Therefore when the realism of science is merged with the essence of spirituality, one is able to perceive more than one level of existence.

"Juan Lopez, there are seven states of existence, which are often referred to in religious scriptures as the seven worlds. The Creator is often referred to in these scriptures as the Lord of the Seven Worlds. While today may not be the best time to teach you about these worlds, it is important for you to recognise their importance in connection with the Sixth Azirah."

Oriana looked at the Maestro. "Why don't you tell Juan Lopez a little more about these worlds, because it will help him to better understand what needs to be done at this Azirah."

"Oriana, it would take several books to explain each of the seven worlds in the level of detail that does justice to anyone trying to understand these concepts," the Maestro replied. The problem with giving short explanations is that they raise more questions, which often overshadow the answers."

Juan looked at the Maestro. "At least give me a brief idea of these worlds," he pleaded. "What are they? What is their connection with the Sixth Azirah? Why do they physically intersect at this place?"

The Maestro smiled. "Well, let me try to give you a simple answer for now. When I have written more on this subject, you will find all the answers that you are looking for. Is that fair?"

"Yes, Maestro!" Juan eagerly replied. "At least give me something to start thinking about on this fascinating subject."

"You see, Juan Lopez," the Maestro continued once more, "we as souls exist in the seven worlds as we travel through our journey of learning, and this existence may or may not be simultaneous. The First World is the World of Formation, where every physical form on this earth and in the universe is created. On earth, our eyes perceive physical form in three dimensions. However, there are forms that exist in more than the three dimensions that are invisible to the human eye. Everything that manifests in physical form, regardless of the number of dimensions, is actually created in the World of Formation. Hence our human body, which is driven by invisible life energy, was created in the World of Formation. Every organ of the body—and every cell, for that matter—takes its form in this world. However, the physical manifestation of the body is visible and evident in our world only. This is true for every rock, tree, bird and every form of creation that we know. From a healing perspective, if we have a damaged organ, we can seek its restoration by reaching the World of Formation through meditation."

Fascinated, Juan asked, "Can we exist in this world in more than one form, based on the fact that all forms are created in the World of Formation?"

“Yes indeed,” the Maestro replied. “There can be a rock somewhere on earth that is linked to you through the World of Formation. It may be an inanimate dimension of you. You may see this rock in this world and consider it to be completely unrelated to you. You may dismiss it because it is lifeless and inanimate. The same is true for trees, plants and all creation. If you look closely, you will see multiple manifestations of yourself. All you need is an open mind and an understanding of Oneness. The World of Formation plays a key role in science too, because what we create as scientists originates from there. We are just inspired with the idea or knowledge. But we can never claim to be creators!”

Juan laughed. “If Ohumah were here, he would say we were all creators in our civilisation, and our only creation is chaos!”

The Maestro joined in the laughter. “Yes, indeed, Juan Lopez. Ohumah is not very impressed with us.”

The Maestro continued, “There is a great deal that will be revealed to humanity in time about the World of Formation. The Second World is the World of Water, which is our material world. All creation in this world is made up largely of water or its derivatives. I need not delve into this world further because you know it only too well. The World of Water is integrally connected with the other six worlds.

“The Third World is the World of Fire, where all the forms exist in an energetic form that resembles fire. This world is referenced in many scriptures, which talk about the jinn, who are beings of fire. These beings, or forms of creation, are made up of energy that resembles fire in appearance. Jinn are similar to us except for the fact that we are made up mainly of water. The World of Fire and its energies intersect with our World of Water. We refer to supernatural forces as unexplainable. When our minds perceive aspects of the World of Fire, we call it supernatural.”

"Can we live in the World of Water and Fire at the same time?" asked Juan.

"No," replied the Maestro. "In this life, we have taken birth in the World of Water, where we have come to gain experience and knowledge. When we complete this life and continue on our journey, we may manifest in the World of Fire if we need to gain knowledge and learning that comes from that world. Some of us may have already been through a manifestation in the World of Fire and some of us may not have."

"When I think of the World of Fire, I think of a harsh world. Would that be a correct perception?" Juan asked.

The Maestro smiled. "Absolutely not. That world is similar to our world and you must not confuse the word 'fire' as being a mixture of light and heat that burns everything in its way. The World of Fire is based on a matrix of powerful energies that manifest in a fluid form rather than a rigid one, as is the case in our world. Some of the energies in the World of Fire are also present in water. Hence water does not quench this fire. The energies of water and this fire are completely compatible with each other.

"The Fourth World, Juan Lopez, is the World of Thought. This world does not have a physical form. Everything exists there in the form of thought energy, which is invisible to the human eye. Some of us have taken birth many times in the World of Thought before taking the human form, because the power of thought is fundamental to our existence. As you learned in the world of the Alacanzera, thought is like a vortex that has life energy of its own. Each time we think, we give birth to thought energy that flows in a highly intelligent manner towards its purpose. There is low-level thought, which is born in the lower levels of our minds. These thoughts are completely based on the material world and our instincts for survival in this world. Low-level thought can be either positive, or negative and destructive. Then, as Oriana and Ohumah taught you, there is also high-level thought, which comes from a spiritual level, which inspires the mind and spreads powerful, positive energies throughout the universe. High-level thoughts manifest into actions in our world. The knowledge that results from them is permanent and flows into the reservoir of Infinite Intelligence, which is the Origin or Creator.

“Through meditation, we can flow into the World of Thought whenever we wish. Have you ever visited a certain place for the first time, yet everything there seemed familiar to you?”

“Yes,” Juan replied, “and one of my friends told me that I may have lived there in my past life, which explained why I was so familiar with the place.”

The Maestro smiled. “That could be so, but the more likely explanation is that you tuned into the World of Thought, where you connected with intense thought-based experiences, which manifested in that particular place. We can all be like radio sets and we can knowingly or unknowingly tune into the thought planes. Some people call it déjà vu, but in fact all that is happening is that we are flowing into the World of Thought.”

Oriana added, “The journey to the World of Thought can be intense and awe-inspiring because an infinite level of experience resides there. This experience exists in a form that has not as yet become pure knowledge because the conversion of experience to knowledge takes place in other worlds, including the World of Water.”

The Maestro added, “Juan Lopez, the World of Thought exists within the Worlds of Water and Fire as well as the other worlds. It also exists independently—in other words, on its own. Just as you can spend one or more lifetimes in the World of Water, you can also spend several lifetimes in the World of Thought. The beauty of living in the World of Water is that with the body, mind and higher-self or soul, you have all the keys you need to be able to live in the World of Thought simultaneously, and gain immense knowledge as a result."

"I would love to learn more about the World of Thought," Juan responded, "because it seems to me that it has a real and a practical significance to my life."

"In good time, my dear friend," the Maestro replied. "There is much that I will share with you in due course. Juan Lopez, the Fifth World is the World of the Eternal. This is a world where no physical forms exist and where there is no such thing as time. This world has no beginning and no end. All souls or life energies that complete their journey in any of the other worlds always come to the World of the Eternal, where they can just 'be,' before they continue with their journey. In naïve terms, you could call it a world of resting. In reality, it is an existence of complete stillness, where everything that has been learned during the lifetime gone by takes on a fluid state. Remember that experience must become knowledge after we have learned from it. Hence the World of the Eternal interacts completely with the next world, the Sixth World, which is the World of Assimilation. Here all the knowledge that has been gained by a soul comes together or assimilates into Light or Infinite Intelligence. Therefore, when we are in the World of the Eternal, we pause in our journey and complete the learning we have gained thus far. By engaging with the World of Assimilation, our learning becomes knowledge, which is Light. At this stage, if we have not gained all the knowledge we need in order to become one with the Infinite Intelligence, we take on a new form (or existence) in one or several of the other worlds, so that we can gain further experience and hence knowledge. Remember, the journey of the soul is all about gaining knowledge."

Oriana added, "When we start life, we are the ray and the Origin is the sun. You can differentiate the ray from the sun because it is not as bright.

However, as the ray gains knowledge, it becomes brighter and brighter, until a point is reached when you cannot tell the ray apart from the sun. That is the point of completion of the journey. Many call it enlightenment. The Maestro likes to call it 'ultimate awareness.'

The Maestro said, "Now you can see, Juan Lopez, how each of the six worlds plays such an important part in our journey. You can, for example, exist in the World of Assimilation and in the World of Water simultaneously. When you reflect each day on your experiences and seek to learn from them, you convert experience to knowledge. At that point, you are living in the World of Water and yet you are engaging with the World of Assimilation, where the actual conversion of experience to knowledge or Light occurs. People who seek to learn from their experience gain what we generally call wisdom. This wisdom is in fact an extension of the World of Assimilation. Of course, Juan Lopez, you can even have one or numerous existences just in the World of Assimilation. So you have to think of all the six worlds as flowing into and through each other at all times, yet each one as being independent of the other, except by virtue of your choice."

"What you are saying in effect confirms to me that we are all indeed powerful beings," Juan responded.

"Yes," the Maestro replied. "Actually, I prefer to use the term 'empowered beings.' Then, Juan Lopez, the Seventh World is the World of Light. This is the world where all the knowledge has manifested into Light or Infinite Intelligence. This is the level of the Origin, Source and Creator. The World of Light governs all the six worlds and forms an integral part of the life energy that flows and manifests in the six worlds. When we meditate and seek enlightenment, or Oneness, with the Origin, we are in fact seeking to become united with the World of Light. When we succeed in achieving this, our minds actually perceive the World of Light and we become totally aware of everything because we have perceived the Infinite Intelligence at a mental level."

Oriana added, "When you sit in meditation and seek to connect with the Oneness, or the World of Light, your soul or life energy actually 'always' makes this connection. But often your mind fails to perceive this, due to lack of focus. Nevertheless, the objective of being in the Oneness is always met when you meditate with that purpose."

Juan said, "What you are telling me is that my soul always connects with the World of Light when I meditate, even though my mind may not know it. Would that be correct?"

"Yes, indeed," the Maestro replied. "Never come out of your meditation believing that you have failed to connect, just because your mind did not experience anything. You always connect, and that is why you should seek to meditate on the name or the thought of Oneness every day, or as often as you can. In this way you will come closer and closer to the Origin each day. You will actually cause events in your life that will steer you towards the Oneness all the time."

"So if I meditate each day at a spiritual level and seek to be one with my Creator, then I can cause future events in my life to change?" Juan asked.

"Yes, Juan Lopez," the Maestro replied. "You will cause events or circumstances in your life that will carry you forward on your path to gaining knowledge. You will also negate the events that provide little or no growth in your knowledge. You will begin to attract a certain type of people in your life and cause others to voluntarily leave your life. Every moment of your existence on this earth will then offer you the greatest chance of growth in knowledge."

"Wow! So I can rearrange my life towards achieving my true purpose in this way."

Together Oriana and the Maestro replied, “Yes, Juan Lopez.”

The Maestro began concluding this part of the teaching. “The Sixth Azirah lies in the Grand Canyon in the United States, which in the Great Scrolls is called the Land of Promise. There is a specific place in the Canyon where the powers of all the seven worlds come together. A global meditation at this place will bring immense growth and Light within humanity. It will help raise human consciousness to a level where we will cease to live in lower-level thought and rise towards higher-level thought, while strengthening our engagement with all the seven worlds in the process. This new consciousness will bring each being closer and closer to the Origin. This will cause us to embark on a new chapter, where we shall live together in unity as enlightened beings.”

The Seventh Azirah—Linkage with the Universe

Juan stood speechless as he stared at Oriana and the Maestro. He felt great peace and comfort knowing that Orishah, Armeeshah and Asakhavana were all with him. He was also acutely aware of the presence of the Great Soul, Oriya, for the familiar scent of sandalwood had once again filled the atmosphere.

The Maestro broke the silence. . . . “Juan Lopez, the Seventh Azirah is the place where the earth connects directly with the universe in terms of its evolutionary flow of intelligence. Let me explain what I mean when I say evolutionary flow. Let us consider the evolutionary processes that exist within the planet with respect to our body, for example. Every change we make in our lifestyle causes an information or intelligence-based signal to be emitted to nature by the body. This information is processed by nature, which then sends back a response to the body, causing a change in its genetic Code. This change in genetic Code alters the state of the body over time in order to help it adapt to the change. I will use the example that was cited to you in the Great Scrolls. Our ancestors had large ear lobes, which they needed at that time to protect themselves and to seek their food, by using a powerful sense of hearing. However, as our environment and lifestyle changed, we did not need such a strong level of hearing anymore. Therefore, over many generations, the genetic make-up of our ear lobes changed as a result of evolutionary responses that were received from nature. Hence today we have much smaller ear lobes: our body has appropriately adapted to the change in its hearing requirements.

“Juan Lopez, in a similar way, the earth has a direct evolutionary connection with the universe. All changes in the earth’s harmonic energy fields are transmitted from the Seventh Azirah to the universe. The response from the universe to these changes is also received at this Azirah. Therefore, as our civilisation disrupts the earth’s harmony and threatens its sustainability, the response from the universe will be to end our civilisation in order to pave the way for a new creation on Planet Earth.”

Oriana interjected, “This is why the whole process of creating a new consciousness and restoring the earth’s harmony through the six Azirahs is so important before 2012. The meditation at the Seventh Azirah will enable favourable communication to the universe of the changes that have occurred within the earth in order to restore its sustainability. Hence the corresponding response from the universe will no longer be one that requires replacement of our civilisation. In fact, the response from the universe will be one of creating a new and a powerful enabling environment within the planet that will nurture the growth of the Thirteenth Civilisation.”

The Maestro added, “Juan Lopez, I believe that the picture is now clear. The Seventh Azirah lies in Nepal at a special place within the Himalayan Mountains. I shall travel to this place in the next three years and help prepare it for a major and a final global meditation, which will enable the opening of a new chapter for humanity.”

Oriana broke in. "You must remember, Juan Lopez, that each of the global meditations at the seven Azirahs does not require a physical presence of the participants. Those who can be present physically can join us and those who are unable to be there can unite with us in a well-co-ordinated meditation from wherever they may be in the world. It is time for you to move forward now and create the tide of positive change in your world."

Suddenly the atmosphere on the beach changed. The sunlight began to fade; the wind became still. Now the ocean came to life and the sounds of dolphins filled the air. In the thousands they had come, as if affirming the process of change that was about to commence. Juan gazed towards the ocean, where Armeeshah, the guardian of the water, held his arms open. Juan walked into his warm and loving embrace. As he became immersed in the water he could hear nothing but the chants of the dolphins. All he could feel was the love of Armeeshah. Juan closed his eyes and a powerful surge of energy flowed into his soul. He was aware that he was now in the embrace of the Great Soul, Oriya. He had merged into the Oneness and had become an integral part of the whole creation. He had become an Alacanzera. Like Oriana, he could now live in both worlds simultaneously. What a blessing of empowerment....

EPILOGUE

The Maestro and Oriana had watched the transition of Juan from a simple human being into a beautiful soul, someone who would now live as a Consciousness of Oneness. Juan's immediate priority would be to assist humanity to transform successfully from the Twelfth Civilisation into the Thirteenth Civilisation, using his newly endowed strength and wisdom.

The Maestro took Oriana's hand and smiled at the ocean alive with chanting dolphins. "The process of change in this world has now begun in earnest. We must remember that the people of the Twelfth Civilisation are indeed empowered beings of limitless potential. Therefore each being that draws upon the core messages from Juan Lopez's journey through the world of the Alacanzera, and actively applies these precious pearls of wisdom in his or her world, can significantly catalyse this process of change. Today the process amounts to just a droplet of water, but tomorrow it will grow in strength to be a river, and then it will become as mighty as the ocean, creating a tidal wave that will drown forever the old human consciousness of division, selfishness and neglect."

Oriana and the Maestro paused to reflect for a few more moments. They then turned and headed back towards Caracas, gradually melting away into the fast-paced world of traffic jams, smog, noise and hyperactivity. . .

Back at the ranch, Oriana smiled as she watched Juan Lopez sitting on the settee on the veranda, his arm around Marie Carmen, gazing into the distance at the silhouette of Mount Avila in the sunset....
